{"communityActivity":"This requires desk research to observe and analyze community activity on platforms like Twitter, Telegram, and similar platforms. The research would examine the frequency of posts, interaction among community members, and how the team engages with the community.", "sentiment":"This also needs desk research to assess the sentiment of the community towards NEAR Protocol. Community sentiment can be gauged from reviews, comments, and discussions on various platforms such as cryptocurrency forums, social media, and dedicated discussion boards.", "teamResponsiveness":"The efficiency of the team in addressing concerns cannot be assessed without researching information including but not limited to customer support responsiveness, engagement on community forums, and how effective they are in solving user problems and concerns."}
